Project Description

Have you gone a little overboard once or twice, skinning your blog or personal website? Great!

Selected applicants should have more than a passing level of familiarity with HTML, JavaScript, and CSS: You'll be putting these skills to the test, modifying templates of our online help center site to better reflect the design guidance used to develop our software application products.

In addition, this theming project may include customizing embeddable widgets for use within our software application products for consistent look, feel and functionality. Your ability will determine the possibilities and outcomes!
